What type of plastic or litter is this?
Please choose an option that best describes what you've found. For definitions see Help

Plastic fragments ('hard' pieces & 'soft' bags/wrappers)
Ropes, string, fishing gear (lines, nets)
Plastic drink bottles
All other types of bottles & containers
All other plastic or litter items

TASK

TUTORIAL

Tag any pieces of litter or plastics you see in this image.

Have a careful look, the + and - zoom buttons might help.

Spotted something?

- If it looks like litter or plastic Tag it! using the "Tag it!" tool. Then select an option from the pop-up list and press 'return' or OK.

Can't see anything?

- No worries! This is also valuable to know - there may be a few of these - just click Done.

Need Help? Click the "Need Help with this task?", visit our Tutorial or Field Guide. Still stuck? Speak to us via the 'Talk' option

Tag it! - click and draw a box around the item. 1 drawn

TUTORIAL

Our objective is to capture as much non-recurring text, either handwritten or printed, on each survey page. If you don't want to transcribe this document, click the reload button in your browser to receive another document. Finally, you may see a zero or zeroes written in the left-hand margin to indicate the absence of an answer(s) on pages with multiple-choice questions. You can ignore these, as we have included a "no answer" option among the possible responses.

Manifests must be .csv or .tsv. The first row should define metadata headers. All other rows should include at least one reference to an image filename in the same directory as the manifest.

Headers that begin with "#" or "/" denote private fields that will not be visible to classifiers in the main classification interface or in the Talk discussion tool.

Headers that begin with "!" denote fields that will not be visible to classifiers in the main classification interface but will be visible after classification in the Talk discussion tool.

Subject images can be up to 1000KB and any of: .jpg, .jpeg, .png, .gif, .svg, .mp3, .m4a, .mpeg and may not contain /, \, :, ,

A workflow is the sequence of tasks that you're asking volunteers to perform. For example, you might want to ask volunteers to answer questions about your images, or to mark features in your images, or both.

Version 1.1 - Status: ACTIVE

Version indicates which version of the workflow you are on. Every time you save changes to a workflow, you create a new version. Big changes, like adding or deleting questions, will change the version by a whole number: 1.0 to 2.0, etc.

Choose a task to edit. The configuration for that task will appear here.
